What a pleasure it was to experience the Partnering for Compliance 3-day Export Conference once again. Ailish and her team continue to show why this is the premier export compliance program to attend. Most of the speakers are top level employees of the Government Agencies that oversee the very regulations that are a part of our everyday roles and responsibilities. Having the ability to hear them present difficult topics in an easy-to-understand manner, as well as and being able to discuss further with them in a 1 on 1 environment, is something everyone in this field should take advantage of. Whether you are new to trade compliance or are an experienced professional, this conference has something for each of us. Thank you to Ailish and team for your continued support of this industry and for everything you do to support us within it.

It seems fitting that this conference closed out right before the celebration of St. Patrick's Day began. Because thanks to Ailish & Alannah NicPhaidin, all the attendees had the luck of the Irish with them. I attended my first Partnering for Compliance conferences over a decade ago and still today find much value in this conference. It appeals to small-, medium- and large-sized enterprises, brokers, lawyers, government officials and other professionals engaged in international trade. Even students can get their start in this area by attending it. The presenters are generally excellent, the materials are valuable for reference, and the connections you can make are unprecedented.

I found Jessica Mangubat & Sharron Cook's presentations very helpful and applicable to the trade compliance for my company. Adrienne Braumiller presentation on tariffs was very informative and helpful as well. I enjoyed hearing about Special Agent Anthony Lanzillotti cases and what he does for OEE/BIS as well as Special Agent Robert Rosen with DHS/HSI.

These Conferences always have the most knowledgeable Presenters, and the subject matter, although often tedious and dry, was presented in a manner that kept one's attention and made it interesting.

As usual, I learned a few things and have been alerted to changes in, or aspects of, Regulations that may affect our business, which made the time spent all worthwhile!

Thank you once again, for making this all possible, both for me, personally, and for the folks that attended! Keep up the good work, and I hope to see you again next year!

It's been a great pleasure of mine having the support and opportunity to connect with a most wonderful group, I thoroughly enjoyed the presentations, everyone was so engaging, very knowledgeable, effective speakers and educators with immense industry experience, conveying complex information with clarity. The interaction with the online team members were very enjoyable and engaging as well.

Thank you Ailish for all you've done to put this event together, also BIG thanks to the Braumiller team and all the speakers for a most memorable presentation and hope to have many more opportunities.
